Personal Statement

Soccer has always been a big part of my life. Aside from creating pathways to many friends and connections, soccer has also made me a better person. As part of a top MLS Next academy, the environment motivates me to be my absolute best. This has translated off the field as well into my academics, as I pride myself on being a straight "A" student who participates in a number of Honors and AP classes. Soccer has also taught me how to accept criticism and grow from it. Being coachable is one of my biggest assets. I'm constantly pushing to make myself a better player. I look forward to translating my elite level soccer skills and academic prowess to the collegiate level.

Comments: I highly recommend John for your college soccer program. John has gifted attributes as a player and a person. John contributes on the field with his decision-making and execution in tight spaces. He's an attacking-minded player who excels in combination play and off the dribble. As a person, John is highly effective in the locker room and on the training pitch, he will give 100% effort and commitment each day. John is a joy to be around and would be a valuable asset to your program.		Comments: I've had the pleasure of getting to know John as a player and person over the past couple of years. John is a very versatile player. Very good with both feet. He is athletic with a big motor and willing to play on both sides of the ball. He is not only a good player but a high-character guy. He is a good teammate, respectful of his teammates, coaches, and the game itself. At this point in his development I feel he can be one of the more impactful players in his age group.
